

Bring completed HAP to class on Wednesday, November 20.

Primary Source Analysis:

Washington Office on Latin America (WOLA) Venezuelan Politics & Human Rights

1. Who are the authors of this blog and what is their claim to expertise?

2. What do they say is their goal in presenting this analysis?

3. What kinds of topics do they cover?

4. Pick any article to analyze: TITLE, DATE:
  - a. What is the focus of the post?

  - b. How is Venezuela portrayed?

  - c. What evidence is presented?

  - d. As a historian, how would you use this to understand current events under Maduro?

Caracas Chronicles

1. Who are the authors of this blog and what is their claim to expertise?

2. What do they say is their goal in presenting this analysis?

3. What kinds of topics do they cover?

[continues on back]

4. Pick any article to analyze: TITLE, DATE:

a. What is the focus of the post?

b. How is Venezuela portrayed?

c. What evidence is presented?

d. As a historian, how would you use this to understand current events under Maduro?

Using these two primary sources as evidence, does Venezuela today fit DeFronzo's criteria for revolution? Why or why not?